OPINIONS

Dear Editor,

In the recent polls on Marijuana one of the opinions given by someone inferred that marijuana should be legalized since alcohol is. Why? Look what alcohol has done! How about all those people who have been killed by drunk drivers? It's illegal to drive while intoxicated. Why should it be legal to drive while smoking grass, which has the same effect as being intoxicated!

And you can't tell me people are not going to smoke pot when they're driving because people will abuse the use of pot just as they have alcohol.

So why create another problem for the world to cope with? I'm not trying to "put pot down," I'm just trying to say, let's try to solve the problems we have now.

J.B.

Dear Editor of Pony Express:

I'm writing concerning the article on Marijuana. I feel that it doesn't give the true feeling of the whole student body. It gives our school a bad name. It also makes it look as if more than half of our school smokes pot.

I've talked to several people about the article, and they were kind of upset about it, too. I feel that everyone knows people smoke pot, but why make it public? In the article, you could tell they favored legalizing it.

Why do people always talk about the people who do bad things? Why not talk about more than half of the school who have brains enough not to smoke pot?

I feel when a person has to resort to something like marijuana it shows they're trying to get away from reality. A mature person can face things without drugs, alcohol, etc. no matter what.

All in all, I feel that the article was a slap in the face to those of us who live good, clean lives.

Lisa Wakefield

Dear Students:

At the end of the fall semester many of you complimented me and even thanked me for a good course. Now I want to return the compliment.

It was a glorious semester for me; because you, the students, made it so. As long as we have young people, like yourselves, I will continue to have the utmost faith in our government and society. You have the intelligence and fortitude to lead and mold this nation in a most meaningful way.

It has been my pleasure to have worked with you, and to have become your friend.

Martha Adcock

To the editors of the Pony Express,

The article in the Christmas edition of the Pony Express, "Only Christians should celebrate Christmas," in my opinion, had no business in a school newspaper. To start with what does Miss Knight mean by knowing Jesus personally - has she heard his name, shook his hand, or maybe seen his portrait?

One thing I must commend the author for is that she did propose a solution to the problem, or said she did. After saying she would propose a solution, she starts telling us to bake a cake for Jesus. Why? He's not going to eat it anyway.

I don't need to be told my Christmas tree can stay. I'll decide that. Billy Graham's comments will not make any difference either.

Finally I'm not saying that Miss Knight doesn't have a right to her opinion. She does have the right to believe whatever she wants, but I don't feel it should be written in a school newspaper, and if it is to be written, changes should have been made.

Sincerely,
Bob Haddox

Bob,

To get to know someone personally one must spend time with him, talk to him, but most important listen to him.

My article was clearly marked "Opinions" on the editorial pages, and was further clarified by the by-line. Editorials do contain individual staff opinions, just as letters to the editor contain student opinions; therefore, I see no reason for the deletion of this article.

In Him,
Andrea Knight

Dear Editor,

I must complain about your last newspaper which I found most confusing. Just what in the world is a "Hodge Podge"? I have never before been confronted with such words except in the case of "Bric-a-brac", which is perfectly logical. Because everyone knows that "Bric-a-brac" is a word which makes sense.

But "Hodge Podge"? What does a "Hodge Podge" do? Can I drink it? My 3-year-old niece took one look at the word and broke out into a rash and began crying. She now visits a psychiatrist twice a week.

Please help clear up my confusion on this terrible threat to our nation's children.

Respectively yours,
"Save the Children"
Post Box 000001

Dear "Save the Children":

You are obviously unacquainted with the Nwad language which often employs words such as Hodgepodge. Hodgepodge is a perfectly logical word, and the little blue dictionary that can usually be found underneath the television in your English class [or underneath one leg of a lop-sided desk] defines "hodgepodge" as "any jumbled mixture". So add that to your bric-a-brac and I hope you get over your topsy-turvy soon.

Dear Editor,

I am writing in protest to the attitude of many students concerning the dress code.

At first the students said, "If the girls could wear pantsuits and the boys could have hair a little longer, we'll be satisfied." They weren't for long - now it's, "If the girls can wear jeans and the boys could have no hair code we'll be satisfied." But they won't be for long. What will be next, no dress code at all?

Mesquite students have a reputation as being well groomed. If we abolish the dress code, our reputation will diminish.

I'm all for keeping the dress code the way it is at present, and keeping up the Mesquite school's reputation.

Sincerely,
Wendy Berry

Disaster movies-the scene today

Picture Courtesy of ABC Interstate Theatres, Inc.

An exciting scene from the Towering Inferno is portrayed as Fire Department Battalion Chief O'Hallorhan, played by Steve McQueen, clings desperately to fireman Mark played by Ernie Orsatti atop a skyscraper scenic elevator disabled by fire and explosions.

By RENEE MAREK and MARTY McLENDON

In the quake of America's very turbulent economy, the movie industry has produced a series of disaster films. These disasterous movies seem to blend in with the topsy-turvy environment the United States citizens are facing at this time.

Why do people want to see these movies? Is it really the economy or perhaps the sudden surge of violence in the movie industry today. People flock out to these movies despite such obstacles as long lines, high prices, and even freezing cold weather.

The first of these disaster movies was "Airport;" it concerned a man in a financial bind who tried to solve his problem by boarding a plane and blowing himself up, injuring people and damaging the plane.

A few months passed and "The Poseidon Adventure" hit the screen telling of a giant tidal wave turning the ocean liner upside down.

In addition to "Airport," is "Airport 75" about a smaller plane that crashed into a luxury airliner, killed the pilots and left a stewardess to drive the plane.

"Earthquake" in "sensuround" is most likely to be the most realistic. The special effects add to the viewer's involvement in the movie. The earthquake took place in San Francisco, destroying it and millions of people.

A recent people-gatherer is the "Towering Inferno." The cast consists of many well-known personalities. "The Towering Inferno" involves a 135-floor skyscraper which catches on fire and spreads throughout the skyscraper killing or injuring many people.

Violence in movies is definitely on the uprise. Maybe it could be called a fad, maybe not. Whatever it is, the movie industry is rolling in the money, and lots of it.

It's obvious that people don't enjoy the hilarious or heroic films of yesteryear. They seem to want bloody scenes, murder, and violence which are the movie-makers' money paradise — a rather sad comment on the American scene.

Graffiti- inscription on a bathroom door

By CAROL JONES

I don't smoke in the boy's room or even the girl's room but I do know this area has a problem.

The problem begins with "The Urge". Not "The Urge" for a cigarette but "The Urge", for once, to enter a clean restroom without tripping over 4 broken hairbrushes, a Texas History folder, an inch high stack of notecards and three gangling freshmen.

To accommodate "The Urge" I invented "The System." (T.S. for short.) T.S. is the process of leaving the library during my third hour study early, to go to the restroom two minutes before the bell rings. At this time - before the classes change, no one is in the restrooms to leave behind folders, notecards, and freshmen! (freshmen?!)

Anyway back to "T.S." "T.S." is also beating everyone to the restroom, running into the stall, grabbing a handful of toilet paper, running into another stall without a broken door and getting the best stall in the stable.

But one day my system failed. Someone had written Q.Y. and Z.Z. all over the broken bathroom door. Now I happen to know there is only one Q.Y. and one Z.Z. in the whole school and Q.Y. is not going with Z.Z. This I know because Quentin Yorkle is going with me. Not Zinnia Zondervan.

Well, by this time I was so overcome with grief "The Urge" seemed inconsequential. Far back in the corner of my mind I heard the bell ring. Then my "Urge" was more important than my grief. However, before I could get into the nearest stall I was stampeded by the "coffin nail crowd" and their "nails". Worst of all the only place left in the restroom was the stall with the broken door and no toilet paper.

The next item on my agenda was to take my scissors from my purse and cut a path through the blue-black smoke to the sink. WHAT? No soap again - Oh - No! Well, a little green Holiday Inn package saved the day. As I dry my hands on a - "Excuse me - no I didn't realize I was using your shirt as a towel - you see the smoke is terrible."

B-R-R-I-I-N-N-G! As the "coffin nail crowd" leaves I stand and wonder. I wonder why doesn't someone clean up in here, get rid of the cigarette butts, notebooks and give those three gangling freshmen detentions for being late to class?

All state choir is the highest choral honor awarded to a high school student and Brad White, senior, was recently chosen All State Tenor at Tarleton State University in Stephenville.

To be chosen a student must go through a series of tryouts beginning with regional, then area and finally state. State is then divided into five areas.

Brad has received many past honors which included numerous first division state solo ratings, finalist in NATS, and a lead in this year's musical, "Bye Bye Birdie." He is a member of the A Cappella choir, Student Council, three year All Region member, one year All Area and All State member and vocalist for the Stage Band.

Brad plans on attending Stephen F. Austin University and majoring in music. But looking past college to his future occupation he says, "I would like to be a high school choral director."

"I enjoy music and would like to continue to be a part of it. I owe my thanks to Mr. Jim Casey, choir director, for all the help he has given all of us for the past two years," added Brad.

Liz ranks 3rd in state

Brad makes All-State Choir

by KAREN COLLINS

Ranking third in state was a big honor for Liz Shelton, a member of the Varsity band. She competed with eight other bass-clarinet players from four other regions throughout Texas.

Second-chair symphonic member of the All-Region band, Liz tried out for All-State band at Bell High School on January 18. A player must rank in the top two positions in their room to make the band. Even though Liz didn't make the band, she now feels that she can, "work harder for next year, because I'll know what to expect now."

A student is judged on their performance of three numbers chosen by UIL standards. They are given three months to work on the pieces composed of one tone number and two technique pieces.

Liz has been playing the bass clarinet for nearly four years. A piano player since the age of four, Liz also plays the violin, the organ and the harp.

Music is a full time job for Liz who attends classes including varsity band, stage band and freshman band, where she assists Mr. Paul Davis, director. Her day begins at 6:30 filing music for both bands, and ends at 5:30 after attending section rehearsals for two hours. Liz spends approximately eight hours a day playing varied musical instruments. Liz is also a student director and will be conducting the varsity band in "Nights in White Satin" during a concert on March 7.

Abilene Christian College has offered Liz a four-year scholarship in the field of music and directing. Explaining her dedication to the field of music, Liz says, "If I find something I like, I like to throw myself into it."

Juniors raise $2,200

Candle sales by the junior class netted $2200 towards the goal of $3000. A total of 1800 candles were sold.

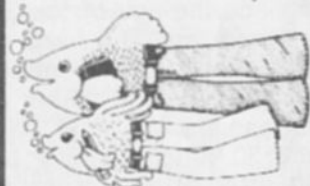

Ricky Adams and Tammy House sold the most with 82 candles each, and received prizes of $25.

"Students still have to pay a small sum to get into the prom, but the money earned by the junior class will lessen the price considerably," says Mr. Bill Scott, junior class sponsor. The prom will be held at the Hilton Inn on May 3.

Military Ball planned

The ROTC is having their annual Military Ball at North Mesquite on March 1, from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., Colonel James Spann announced.

The Ball will be a combination of ROTC students from North Mesquite and Mesquite to honor the ROTC Sweethearts. Five sweethearts candidates will be chosen from each school, nominated by secret ballot. To pick the ROTC sweetheart there will be another secret ballot. Each of the candidates will receive a crown.

The schedule of events for the ball is as follows: The ceremony will be featured first, and then they'll proceed to the honor guard. The first dance is for the Sweetheart and the Battalion

Commander.

After the first dance is over everyone else can join in the fun and activities, explained Colonel Spann.

Honored guests for the ball are Mayor Bob Beard, Dr. Ralph Poteet, and other members of the School Board and their wives, and the principals of both schools.

To get ready for the big event, ROTC members will begin decorating the cafeteria the Friday before the ball, after school is dismissed. They will continue decorating until Saturday afternoon, and then have rehearsals for the ceremonies of picking the ROTC Sweetheart. The dress for the ROTC Ball will be formal. The theme for this year's Ball is the "Age of Aquarius."

Speech, Drama members rank high

"All of our students did extremely well in all competing events," said Mrs. Debbie Chapman, sponsor, about the Sam Houston Tournament the speech and drama department attended on December 3 and 4. The students earned a 4th place rating for North Mesquite.

Tommy McNeely, Karen Pirkle, and John Marshall placed 2nd in group improvisation. Karen Pirkle won 3rd place in Oratory, Gary Carter placed 3rd in Dramatic, and Paula Mackey was a finalist in Dramatic.

From the counselor

Representatives from Bell and Howell schools will present a program January 31 for all seniors. Following a movie and a slide presentation there will be a discussion about careers in general.

Mr. Bob Sego, senior counselor, requests that students interested in engineering contact him for further information.

Cheerleaders have ups and downs

Varsity cheerleaders remain spirited in spite of the flu, a car wreck, and shin splints, living up to the National Cheerleaders Association "number one in Texas" rating they received.

Another honor one of the squad members, Pam McGee, received was being accepted as a teacher in the summer cheerleading campus.

Future plans include cheerleader tryouts on February 25, with practice starting February 18. To be eligible, a student must be passing all courses with a C. Mrs. Sue Murrey, sponsor, said.

Baby couldn't wait

Mr. Raymond McFaul, math teacher, and his wife Betti were expecting their first child, but not on January 10 - the night they decided to go to the movies.

They were standing in line to get tickets to see "Freebie and the Bean," when the time came for Mrs. McFaul to go to the hospital. There she gave birth to a 6 pound 10 ounce baby girl who they named Julie Elizabeth.

Instead of seeing "Freebie and the Bean," Mr. McFaul got to see Betti and the Baby.

New teachers arrive

With the new semester, three new teachers have arrived at North Mesquite.

Mrs. Joe Duncan has taken over Mrs. Lois Meinert's General Business classes. This is Mrs. Duncan's first teaching job, and she likes the students here very much. She was graduated from North Texas State University, majoring in business and history. She has three children and enjoys sewing and playing the piano.

Mrs. Helen Mize is now teaching Mrs. Kay Park's English classes. Before coming to North Mesquite, Mrs. Mize taught in Arkansas, where she received her degree in English from Arkansas State University. Her hobbies are "too many to name," and when asked how she likes North Mesquite she replied, "I love it! I couldn't wait to get into the school. I'm very impressed."

Mr. Paul Humphrey is also new to North Mesquite and is teaching Driver's Education.

Library gift

As a gift "To the future leaders of our community," Town East Savings and Loan Association has presented 20 two-year magazine subscriptions to North Mesquite's library, announced Mrs. Martha Peace, librarian. Covers for the magazines and racks to hold them were also received.

"The magazines are more for entertainment than for research," said Mrs. Peace. They include Cycle World, Downbeat, Sportsmen, Horse, Car and Driver, Rudder, Tennis, and New Ingenue, among others.

Inside each magazine cover is a special folder containing information on drug abuse to be changed periodically and filed for student use.

Fanatic on the loose

If you ever want to know anything about Elvis Presley, ask Cynthia Johnston, junior, who can tell you anything from his rank and serial number in the army to his shoe size.

Cynthia has always liked Elvis but says, "I really got fanatical about it in June, 1972. To date, she has collected 32 of his albums and seen 27 movies he starred in. She also collects posters, pictures, and books about him, and in her own words, "Anything I can get my hands on!"

When asked how she felt about Elvis recently celebrating his fortieth birthday, Cynthia replied, "I think his career will drop off now that he's older, but I'll still like him just as much as 'always.'"

Rest easy Elvis!

Freshman needed

Freshmen who are in Algebra I, made an A or B for their semester grade, and would like to join the Slide Rule and Number Sense Club, contact Mr. Ramiro Sanchez in Room B-4 or Mrs. Judy Hopkins in Room B-6.

ROCK MUSIC

over P.A.

Winter offers trash, treasures

A cross between Texas blues and English heavy metal. Impossible, you say? Check out Johnny Winter's latest album. He has changed producers (from Rick Derringer to Shelly Yakus), but he still includes a generous dose of down-home Southern boogie on "John Dawson Winter III".

After a lick from drummer Richard Hughes, Winter's powerhouse guitar jumps in with a smoking fill to make John Lennon's song "Rock & Roll People" the perfect album opener. Though the lyrics are slightly offbeat ("My father was a mother, My mother was a son"), Winter and friends keep the place shakin'.

He has added his two cents worth to the current nostalgia craze with "Golden Olden Days of Rock & Roll", and that's about how much it's worth. A stale arrangement complete with lackluster horns does not help this Little Richard imitation.

On the other hand, Winter does bring back old memories with "Raised on Rock", which comes with his most frenetic guitar playing in a long time.

In between, Winter's maniac guitar can be heard in all its glory on "Self-Destructive Blues." In the style of Z.Z. Top, it's hot, heavy, and nasty.

But he saves his best stuff for the following song, "Stranger." It includes the album's most forceful and believable vocal. Winter broadens the emotional range of his work with this soulful ballad.

"Mind Over Matter" is another case altogether. It's rather nondescript; not bad, but not good. Luckily, there is a competent guitar solo, though it's certainly nothing special or unique. I just wish I could say the same thing about two other tracks on the album. It's a close race between "Pick Up on My Mojo" and "Roll With Me" as to which one is the worst.

On the bright side, Johnny decided to include some old rhythm-and-blues music, "Lay Down Your Sorrows." Though the background orchestra and female chorus tend to distract from the virtuoso guitar playing, Winter, nevertheless, has a distinct flair for writing some of the best lyrics around.

The first one, "Love Song To Me", is a country-western spoof where Winter implores all of his fans to keep buying his records, requesting them every night, and going to see him in concert whenever he drops by. Rick Derringer's pedal steel guitar adds a lot, too.

To end the album, we find "Sweet Papa John" coming back home to "them good ol' Texas blues." Accompanied by just a bass drum and ten million guitars, Winter caresses the highly suggestive lyrics, letting the syllables roll smoothly off his tongue. With lines that can't be printed in a family newspaper, he alludes to a subject not normally studied in the average school curriculum. This album doesn't boast any great hits like his famous "Still Alive and Well," but Winter is definitely gaining more variety and reaching out in a new, more mature direction.

The best cuts, like "Stranger," are heavily influenced by his brother Edgar ("Frankenstein", etc.), who sat in at the keyboards to help record a few tunes.

It's got some great stuff, and it's got some pure trash. But on the average, "John Dawson Winter III," though highly uneven, comes out ahead.

Rick Wakeman

says no

to YES

By PAUL NEELEY &
BRIAN DHORITY

It has been six months since Rick Wakeman left Yes, one of the more popular English bands. It's refreshing to see an artist leave a group because he disagrees with their musical approach. Some of his friends urged him to stay - he would have been a millionaire before the year was over - but he put music ahead of anything else. Perhaps his past experiences explain why.

Rick's father, Cyril, was a pianist for the Ted Heath orchestra. He started his son on a musical career with lessons at age four-and-a-half. Rick was admitted to the Royal Academy of Music when he was only 16. He studied piano and clarinet and began to teach when he was 18.

He then embarked on the studio-musician career. He recorded with such groups as T Rex, Cat Stevens, and David Bowie until he was invited to join the Strawbs. Rick related in Rolling Stones that this was "my wild oats period. I'd jump around the piano and kick about. I got all that rubbish out of my system."

After 15 months he was invited to join Yes. The next day recording started on what was to be their gold album, Fragile, with their hit single, "Roundabout."

Yes gradually drifted from Wakeman's type of music. Their last album before the break was the cryptic and highly nebulous Tales From Topographic Oceans. When the band began playing this type of music instead of some of their past efforts Rick decided to leave.

He immediately began a 20 city tour of the United States. Seventy orchestra and choir members rounded out this never-to-be-repeated spectacle. Record sales skyrocketed and his first album, The Six Wives of Henry VIII, is near gold; his second album, Journey To The Centre of the Earth, will soon reach platinum.

He summed up his musical feelings in an interview with Rolling Stone writer Cameron Crowe, "All you can do is follow your heart," he said. "If someone was to list the ten biggest musician cliches, that would surely top the list, but it's still the truth."

THE TOWERING INFERNO

The latest trend in movies seems to be the disaster flick. Started by such notables as "The Poseidon Adventure," "Airport," and "Zeppelin," it has become one of the most profitable ventures in the movie world.

After standing in line for an hour, the thrill of getting to see people burned wears off quickly. Anything with Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, Faye Dunaway, Fred Astaire, Richard Chamberlain, Jennifer Jones, and Robert Vaughn must be good, right? Wrong.

The movie started with a new skyscraper shadowing San Francisco. From there on, it all went up in smoke. The building caught on fire because a contractor put in faulty wiring. The various ways people can die in a fiery skyscraper are then depicted, with such appetizers as flaming bodies plummeting out the window or falling from rescue cables.

But, before all is lost, it's the cavalry, no, it's Steve McQueen to the rescue wearing a construction worker's helmet instead of a stetson. He piloted a helicopter which miraculously lifted a glass elevator filled with panic-stricken females to safety. Never mind that it would take 20 helicopters to lift that, it's the thought that counts.

Things have gone too far when at least 40 people find different ways to expire while some idiot strums on a guitar in the background. Whatever happened to spaghetti westerns?

Lori Myers brings Dummy to life

By KAREN COLLINS

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to be a ventriloquist? Sophomore Lori Myers is a ventriloquist and she "enjoys" her work.

Lori has been practicing ventriloquism for four years and two years with her professional dummy named Randy Reynolds.

Lori's parents bought Randy for her and she has six outfits that she either bought or made herself. Randy owns four sports coats, a cowboy outfit and a Mexican outfit that matches hers.

Randy and Lori have performed at many birthday and Christmas parties, banquets, Vocational Bible Schools, school classes, stores for promotion of a product, and talent shows.

Randy has many features to classify him as a "professional dummy." He can wink, blink, raise his eyebrows, stick out his tongue, move his eyes back and forth and his tie lights up.

Lori was able to pick his hair color, eye color, face color.

While living in Kansas, Lori auditioned for a TV show, "The producer told me all I needed was a professional dummy," she said. She and her family then moved to Mesquite.

She is a member of the NAAV - North American Association of Ventriloquist's and is listed in the Peggy Taylor Talent Agency.

Up and coming

Texas' own Johnny Winter, and guests James Cotton and Peter Frampton, will appear February 4 at Memorial Auditorium. Ticket prices are $5 and $6. If you can't make it, try and catch the "Poor People's Concert" on KZEW (98 FM) that midnight.

Looking far ahead to March 3 and 4, Led Zeppelin will be at Tarrant County Convention Center and Memorial Auditorium. "Physical Graffiti" should be available locally soon.

Alice Cooper, the Gloria Swanson group of rock, has temporarily split up. Hopefully they'll reunite before their annual spring tour.

The leaders of the Allman Brothers Band, Dicky Betts, and Greg Allman, should both be winding up their solo tours soon. The band's rhythm section is currently being featured in Atlanta nightlife, and is reportedly thinking about recording a jazz album under the name, 'We Three'.

Both the band as a whole, plus aforementioned Cooper, have plans for recording an album in February.

Kim Martin, the managing editor of Texas music magazine Buddy, has resigned to take over the amusement section of The Dallas Times Herald.

Folkies Randy Newman and Ry Cooder will appear February 8 at McFarlin Auditorium.

The lead guitarist for the Rolling Stones, Mick Taylor, has departed Jagger and company to join Jack Bruce's new band. He said, "It was all for purely musical reasons."

Rick Wakeman's recent tour took a six figure bath but the losses were recouped in high record sales.

KZEW received some free publicity when the king of the keyboards wore a Zoo-Freak T-Shirt on a recent televised "In Concert" show.

Kinky Friedman wouldn't take it off for $10,000 ... His beard, that is. The roper was offered the money by Gillette for a TV commercial, but he politely declined.

Man of many wonders

By ANDREA KNIGHT

Skiing, old car collecting and motorcycling are just a few of math teacher, Mr. Larry Wagliardo's many outside interests.

Even after teaching Algebra II and Computer Math courses, Mr. Wagliardo seems to find time for several very interesting pastimes, such as skiing. For some people the prospect of skiing is merely a dream; a once - (or twice if they're lucky) in-a-lifetime experience, but not for this sports-minded educator. A recent excursion to Montana marks the twelfth in a series of seasons spent on the slopes.

"The season begins sometime in the end of November and ends, oh, sometime around Easter," explained Mr. Wagliardo. He spends about a week each season actually skiing.

"I learned by taking lessons ... I've spent ten seasons in Colorado, one in Arizona, and this last time we went to Montana." (The 'we' consists of a few close friends.) Mr. Wagliardo learned to ski in steps. First he learned the 'snow-plow', then he mastered the 'stem christy', before graduating to 'paralleling'. "That's where you put your feet together and just swing your hip in order to turn," he related, giving a demonstration.

"I once skied behind Billy Kidd (Olympic Gold Medalist). He came down in about a minute and a half; it took me more like twenty, but he went over the mogels (hills) while I had to go around them."

"In Montana we stayed in this cabin with no running water, and no gas, but we did have an electric cook stove and an outhouse."

"One day there was a blizzard, but it was really pretty otherwise. Another day the weather got up to 24 degrees and with all your ski clothes on it makes you sweat."

One time his calm, cool image that he generally portrays around the school was totally destroyed when he found his big toe was frost bitten. "It was numb for a long time after the actual frost bite left," he said.

In his usual modest way Mr. Tall, Dark, and Humorous describes his skiing ability, "I'm really fantastic!" After 12 seasons he should be.

Mr. Larry Wagliardo stands in front of ski resort in Colorado

Mr. Wagliardo also has two motorcycles, a 1961 Triumph 350 which he's had six years and a 1973 Kaiwasaki 900 that he's had a year. He enjoys going to picnics on them. Explaining why he likes motorcycling, he says, "In cars you sort of watch the scenery go by, but on a motorcycle you can be almost 'in' the scenery." He bought his first motorcycle, a Suzuki 250 X-6 Hustler, in 1967.

Another pastime of this on-the-go man is collecting old cars. He presently has four, two 1938 Chevrolets, one is a coupe that's restored, the other is a two door sedan. He's also acquired two 1937 Buicks. One has sidemounts; the other is a big four-door.

Mr. Wagliardo bought his first 'old car' from an 88-year-old lady. "She was still driving around in Commerce where I went to school." Three years later he returned to see the lady and show her the car.

He does his own restoring except for the upholstery. "When the coupe was being restored I didn't have anything in it except a cement block and a stump."

With skiing, motorcycling, and collecting old cars as outside activities one must agree that he does a good job of keeping busy.

"I believe very strongly in what I'm doing. It takes me over a year to write something, prepare it and iron out the faults before I'll play it before an audience. If I get booed off the stage, then I'll obviously deserve it, but at least I will have bombed out on my own terms."

"Touring with an orchestra and choir and all, I get knocked a lot for trying to tackle a style that's supposedly above my head. If that's what I'm doing, I can't say to myself, I will now write another classical rock extravaganza. I don't work that way."

Wakeman's new album, The Myths and Legends of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, should be released early this year.

Stallions outthrustle Owls

In an exciting overtime 77-74 victory the Stallion Varsity basketball team defeated the Garland Owls January 21.

The Stallions led most of the way, but the Owls came back early in the third quarter to take the lead. North Mesquite rallied to tie the game at 66 at the end of regulation time.

Mark Davis, junior, led all scorers with 22 points in the regulation time and two more in the overtime. Seniors Mike Nelson and Van Ogden came through for the Stallions in the overtime as they had five and four points respectively to put and keep the Stallions in the lead.

This victory and Lake Highland's loss gives the Stallions undisputed second place with a 7-2 district record and an 18-6 overall record.

Remaining at the top of their district, the North Mesquite Junior Varsity took a 59-48 victory over the Garland J.V. January 21.

Leading the scoring for the Stallions was sophomore Clad Watson with 14 points and sophomores Steve Roushey and Chris Campbell with 12 points a piece.

Stallions down Raiders

By MAX JAGGERS

It was basketball at its best January 17, as the Stallions defeated the North Garland Raiders 67-60 in the North Mesquite gym.

The big crowd watched a very low scoring game in the first half as the score was 27-23 at half-time in favor of the Stallions.

With only five minutes left in the game, the varsity pulled into a ten point lead and it looked like an easy victory.

The Raiders weren't to be had so easy; however, as they pulled within two points of the Stallions with 1:30 to go in the game. Clinging onto the lead, the varsity ended the game ahead of the Raiders. This victory makes the Stallion district record 6-2, while their overall record is 17-6.

The Sports Scene

By MARTY McLENDON

This year's college basketball is perhaps the best competition that has been seen in the United States in quite some time.

At the first of the season it looked like it would be a two way battle between UCLA and North Carolina State for the national championship. But, then a ring was heard up north as sports writers were shouting that the Hoosiers from Indiana University were perhaps the best in the land; and sure enough in no time at all they were setting pretty as the number one team in the nation. They were followed by North Carolina State and UCLA. Then, shortly after Wake Forest pulled the stunning upset of North Carolina State. After this startling game Indiana stood as number one, UCLA was number two and Missouri Valley Conference Ace Louisville was riding along in third, followed by North Carolina State.

As the season progressed Indiana remained in first with an outstanding 17-0 record, UCLA was 15-0, and third place Louisville had a fine 13-0 standing.

At this time we look towards the end of the season and wonder who will prevail as the 1975 National Champions. It seems that Indiana is a likely choice to remain on top, and Louisville and UCLA will probably battle it out for the Hoosiers opponents in the title tilt. Also North Carolina State, Maryland, and Arizona State may provide some tough competition when playoff time comes around.

How the top 5 will look at the end of the season:

1. Indiana
2. UCLA
Louisville
3. North Carolina State
4. Maryland
5. Arizona State

Mark Davis (25) goes up for a lay-up in the action against Mesquite.

Tennis set for district

Preparation for the round robin matches February 10 is on the tennis team's agenda. The tournament will determine the district winners.

The tennis team took first place in the Grand Prairie Doubles Tournament in December. They also won second in the Berkner tournament in November. Their record is seven wins, one tie, and three losses.

Eight AAAA will hold their tournament to determine who will go to the regional tournament in April.

Coach James Brinkley says, "We have a good chance of sending someone to the regional meet this year. It would be a first for someone from North Mesquite to receive such an honor."

Sports Briefs

Starting out the season with a 10-1 record, the North Mesquite Golf Team consistently outplays their competition. Playing regular matches with South Garland and Mesquite three times each, North Mesquite came out on top everytime. Other schools played are Lake Highlands, Richardson Pearce, Bryan Adams, North Garland, and Garland. Only Bryan Adams won over the Stallions January 15.

Top six members on the boys' team are Gene Aube, Gary Day, Lynn Newberry, Glenn Newberry, Dwayne Lancaster, and Ronnie Simons.

February 11 will start official matches with Garland there, February 14, Mesquite here, and February 15, Richardson there.

The North Mesquite Baseball Team starts their 1975 season off with a double header against Louisville March 1.

All North Mesquite home games will be played at Eastfield College

The two Freshmen Basketball teams began district competition by playing each other. The Blue team came out on top 52-43 over the White team. January 16 both teams played Mesquite; Blue won 72-70, while White lost 70-66. District records so far is Blue 2-0 and White 0-2. The schedule for the rest of the season is as follows:

January 30 - Wilmer-Hutchins, there
January 31-Feb. 1 - Plano Tournament, there
Feb. 3 - Blue and White - 2 p.m., here
Feb. 6 - Mesquite, there
Feb. 13 - Open
Feb. 17 - Mesquite, here
Feb. 20 - Wilmer-Hutchins, there.

Team captains for the girls track team have been elected. Receiving honors were Barbara Long, senior and Pam Burkhalter, junior.

The first meet is at North Garland on January 30.

February 6 is the first of thirteen meets in the 1975 track season. It's a duel with Adamson at North Mesquite at 4 p.m.

Coach Brent Thorne thinks the team looks fairly strong and promising this year in field and running events.

Hard work, determination and enthusiasm for sports describes Cross Country Runner Rob Ford. In Rob's second year on the team he has received the honor of team captain.

Last year Rob started to play basketball; but when they went out on runs for workout, Coach Ronald Powell and Coach Rex Garvin, realizing his potential for Track, placed him on the team. This year he has run around 1,300 miles. He also plays basketball for Oates Drive Baptist Church.

After graduation Rob plans to go to East Texas or Stephen F. Austin where he will major in Math and Physical Education. While in college he plans to continue in Cross-Country. Rob also hopes to play basketball and to be a kicker on the football team.

Motorcross popular at North Mesquite

By JUNE BLANKENSHIP

Looking for a sport that is different, exciting and really wild, look no further! Motorcross, a fairly new motorcycle sport, might just be the answer!

In the past few years a new sport has been gaining popularity steadily. The type of motorcycle racing known as "motorcross" is more popular now than it ever has been. Racing is done on a dirt track with small hills, creekbeds, sharp turns, and fast straight-a-ways combined in a way to test a rider's skill on his motorcycle. The rider must lap the track several times and number of laps vary with different tracks.

There are usually three different races for each class. In order to have trophies, riders are charged a small entry fee. The winners are determined by the order in which they finish in all three races. In order to be eligible to place, the rider must finish each race.

Motorcross is a sport everyone can enter. There's an open class for big bikes; one for bikes ranging from 400cc to 500cc; a class for the medium-sized bikes, the 250's, and a separate classes for smaller bikes like 125, 100 and mini-bikes. At some tracks they have a Powder-Puff class which is especially for girls.

The Motorcross races usually have many competitors entered and some who frequent those tracks attend North Mesquite. Ricky Adams, junior; Steve Howard, senior; Bret Combs, sophomore; James Novey, junior; Ricky Sanford, sophomore; Steve Causey, freshman; and Teresa Adams, junior; are a few that race and attend North Mesquite.

Teresa has won 26 trophies in her two years of racing and feels like she has done fairly well for a girl. "Competition is not all that great," says Teresa. "the girls who race just putt-putt around." She says that boys are better to race with because they are faster and more difficult competition. She hopes to continue in the sport to bigger and better races.

Some of the local tracks around the Dallas vicinity are Lake Whitney, The Rabbit Runs in Plano, Lucky Landing, Stemmons, Mosier Valley and Paradise Valley.

If you plan on going to the races, they are usually held on weekends and normally take up the whole day. You might want to bring chairs because usually there are no bleachers provided by the tracks. Some people even bring small trailer houses and campers.

If you are convinced now that Motorcross just might be your sport, good luck, but please think over this next sentence. Motorcross was determined to be the second most physically demanding sport only outdone by soccer.
